

I-Search Planning

Question	Answer	Research
Refer back to your In Ten Years blog post and your thoughts about your future career.	Use what you already wrote to help you answer these questions. Use what you imagine, know, or assume to help you answer the questions, too.	Consider where you could look for more information about this topic. Ideas include interviews, company websites, blogs, experts, colleges and universities, job shadow and more!
1. What future career option(s) did you write about in your blog post?
2. What type of education, training, or support would you need to work in the career you wrote about?
3. What are some questions you have about this future career?
4. What skills (computer-related, mechanical, academic, etc) do people in this field require?
5. Is this a career that's hiring? Is it a career that can last? Are people in this field in demand? What is the job outlook in this field?
6. What other considerations are there for a career in this field? Would you have to live in a certain location, commute, etc?
